Field Visit Report

Course: B.C.A

Date :29/09/2022

Place of visit: Ramadevarabetta and Nelligudde kere

Purpose of visit: To gain the practical exposure on environmental health by scavenging meat from carcasses and to learn water and soil quality aspects.

Objectives of the visit: The field visit is a part of the course to gain practical knowledge of the Environmental resources.

Introduction:

Ramadevarabetta Vulture Sanctuary is a bird sanctuary in Karnataka India, aimed for the protection of vultures. Established in 2012, it is the first Vulture Sanctuary in India. Of the nine vulture species found in India, three species, long-billed, Egyptian and white-backed vultures are found here.

As vulture populations decline, other scavengers (such as rats or dogs) can move in, which can throw off the ecosystem's balance and be detrimental to wildlife, human health, and the economy.

The Nelligudde tank catchment and its command area is covered over a large to a extent by the younger Gneissic complex , located in Bidadi, Magadi Taluk, Ramanagara District.

Learning outcome: The students were exposed to the various species of plants, trees and birds specially Vulture , understood the role of them in the ecosystem, in them influencing the weather preventing soil erosion and in them serving as a source of oxygen which is dwindling in the progressive industrialisation of the modern world. Impacted by the vitality they play to the environment.

Due to Rapid urbanisation and industrialization in the lake catchment, resulted in deterioration of quality of lake water and soil in the catchment areas. So its necessary to have proper management of lake for the purpose of drinking and irrigation of land.

The students with renewed vigour after this trip have come up with goals of planting more trees and prevent them from being cut indiscriminately, thus save the environment and the future.
